CITY TRUSTEES

Election Called for Annexation of Casa Verdugo and Verdugo Canon

All members present except Mr. Coker, who came in at a late hour. There was a large audience assembled in the lobby and within the sacred pale behind which the trustees deliberate, occasionally talk and quite frequently do things. An invitation had been sent to gentlemen particularly interested in the proposed annexation of the Casa Verdugo section and the shoe string strip in Verdugo Canon. There was a delegation of prominent citizens of Casa Verdugo present, among them Madison Jones, A. C. Ady, J. R. Lockwood, T. E. Stanton, Y. Price, Brown, and a half dozen others. The Verdugo Canon end was represented by M. V. Hartman, Mr. Jones and Mr. John A. Pirtle. The two former are the moving spirits of the Western Empire Company that has recently acquired the Mesneer vineyard property in the canon north of the Verdugo ranch and Park property. It was admitted by these gentlemen also that they have been negotiating for the last above named property which was represented at the meeting by the present owner, Mr. Pirtle. The meeting was called to order and the presentation of demands, a process was declared and the meeting thrown wide open. The proceedings for the next few hours were delightfully informal. While no one seemed to have brought blankets, the majority of those present had come for a long session and a period of relaxation, somebody remarking that even the stove smoked! It will be remembered that a petition in due form signed by more than the required number of voters had been presented to the city trustees a week ago, asking for an election to be held on the proposition of annexing Casa Verdugo and a large section of land in Verdugo canon to the city of Glendale. This petition had been accepted and verified by the city clerk and it was generally admitted that the law made it mandatory upon the trustees to call said election. The territory outlined, however, was not satisfactory to everybody. This territory is a practical extension of the city's boundaries on the west up to Kenneth Road, thence easterly along that road to the west line of the Casa Verdugo and the Rancho de la Bana, thence southerly to within one hundred and fifty feet of the city's north line. Thence it runs easterly to a point within 200 feet of Glendale avenue following parallel with that thoroughfare up through the Rose ranch to the Verdugo ranch line, then in a direction northerly to the west side of the level land of the canon for enough up to include the majority of the level portion of the Mesneer tract; thence east and south so as to take in the land on the west side of the canon road. The object of this is to enable the city to protect the sources of the Verdugo Canon water, from whence comes our local supply. The Casa Verdugo end of the matter was taken up first.

It appeared desirable to some of the proponents of annexation in the outside territory concerned, that the "Wash" be under control of that bureau, but to the Glendale members of the committee this did not appeal favorably. The matter was threatened out in an amiable manner by Messrs. Jones, Ade, Lockwood and others on the one side and by Messrs. Woodberry, Stanley, Shawalter, et al. for the insiders. Trustee Lane read a newspaper report of a decision given within a few days by a court in California to the effect that after a petition is filed and verified by the clerk, no names can be withdrawn from it. The fact being ascertained that the question of changing boundary lines was really not germane to the subject, the trustees having no option in the matter. City Attorney Evans also held this opinion. However, the bars were down, everybody jumped in and the matter was discussed lengthwise, crosswise and otherwise until one o'clock in the morning. The chairman held the discussions down to the question of taking in the Wash. Finally Mr. Lane moved that the lines be adopted as laid down in the map accompanying the petition as far as the Casa Verdugo section was concerned. This was seconded by Mr. Cameron Thom, representing the Rose and Thom interests, and was adopted. This cleared the way for the Casa Verdugo contingent to go home, which they did, leaving the Wash out in the cold. Before leaving, Mr. Madison Jones requested the local papers to make clear the fact that this annexation matter originated with and has been pushed to its consummation thus far by Casa Verdugo people, not by citizens of Glendale, as erroneously stated in the Los Angeles Times. (To get local news straight, take the local paper.—Ed.) During this portion of the discussion, City Attorney Evans expressed the opinion that the city of Glendale cannot be held responsible for any damage done to the property of private citizens by the Wash overflow except as its responsibility applies to the streets, grades, crossings, etc., which it controls. The extension of the city's territory up into the canon was then taken up. Mr. T. W. Watson of the boundaries committee explained that the sole object of this extension is to enable the city to protect the water supply and take care of the sewage, and it is considered that this is of paramount importance. Mr. Pirtle expressed the opinion that it is useless to take in the territory proposed and to leave out that on the east side of the canon. Mr. Woodberry replied to this to the effect that the water from the east side does not drain into the water supply, but comes down the wash. Mr. Hartman said that their development company had figured upon providing for sewage and had set aside $50,000 in bonds for this purpose. They object to the land being taken into Glendale at this time—when it is taken in it should all be included and not a part, as is now proposed. They have always worked with Glendale and hope always to do so, as the whole territory has identical interests. If he was a city trustee he would not attempt to protect the water sources in this war (in reply to Mr. Lane). Mr. Pirtle said that no necessity exists for proposed annexation of this section; there is no danger of contamination now and will not be for years. When the territory settles up it will be easy enough to annex it then. Mr. Union believed that the protection of the water supply is and should be the first consideration. Mr. Hartman said that to annex this territory now would do their company a great injury, but when necessary to do anything for the protection of the water or to provide a sewer system, his people would be glad to co-operate with the people of Glendale. Mr. Jones representing the same interests agreed with this; he was of the opinion that as long as Glendale had no definite plan for water development in the canon, it was foolish to extend the city boundaries over that section, particularly as it was only proposed to cover a part of it, leaving outside other level land in the Casa Verdugo which should be included in a scheme for protection. Mr. Watson expressed belief in the liberality and justice of the people of Glendale, who would not want anything unreasonable. He thought it would be possible to stipulate on the part of the city that any taxes taken from this added territory would be expended there and that valuations for assessment purposes would be fair and not burdensome. Mr. Woodberry expressed the opinion that the whole Casa Verdugo section is a vast reservoir of gravel through which the water gradually percolates, giving it absolute purity, but that it is necessary to protect it from contamination; main question is, can we plan and work together for the best interests of all. Mr. Hartman said that the scheme would work a great hardship to them in handling the Mesneer property and would in consequence be detrimental to the best interests of Glendale; can't work with city lines around them. Mr. Jones stated that they are just about to close a deal on the Verdugo ranch tract. The Watson ranch of 400 acres is about ready to put on the market. Water has been developed there and in Canyada and great developments are just ahead. He believed that the best place to develop water is on the Pirtle tract and was of the opinion that a large supply could be developed there. This is a matter for the future when there is an intelligent engineering plan to work to. His company has spent $70,000 in a year and a half in that section and wish to do much more. That is the finest foothill section in Southern California, needs only transportation and we are going to have that in ten years it will have a great influx of people. Would like Glendale to appoint a committee to meet their engineer and together work out the water and sewage problem. Are prepared now to stipulate as to a sewer system for the whole valley; leave this section as it is and together we can work out these problems satisfactorily, but the proposed action will injure both. The object of his company is to develop land, that of the city to develop water. The development of water means getting it from underground, not collecting that on the surface; that which is underground needs no protection.

The matter of a sewer system was gone over at great length, but the two forces did not in the end succeed in settling together.

The informal discussion closed about 1 a. m. when Messrs. Jones, Hartman and others left and the board convened in regular session again.

Mr. Coker moved that the annexation question be postponed for one week. There was no second to this and Mr. Watson made a motion that the matter be taken up and it was seconded by Mr. Lane. The majority of the board expressed themselves as believing that the matter of a sewer could not be handled satisfactorily with a part of the system within and a part outside of the city. Mr. Lane stated that his position was based upon the recent decision of the court which left the trustees no leeway in the matter. Being put to a vote the motion was adopted unanimously. The resolution calling the election was then read and adopted. Hearing on ornamental street lights was postponed for one week.

On motion of Mr. Watson, a resolution providing for a bond election to provide for the extension of the electric light system, in the sum of $40,000 was read and discussed. In this connection a letter was read from the manager of the electric light department, specifying the purposes to which the sum be applied, as follows:

Purchase of plant in West Glendale	$5,500
Extending and adding to present lines	8,000
Street lights	1,500
New meters and services	2,000
Additions to station equipment	2,500
New high tension lines	4,000
Conduit	7,000
Contingencies	5,000
Total	$42,500

The letter concludes as follows: "The plant is entirely self-supporting, and is paying all charges due for the present bonds, so that any addition to the bonded indebtedness will be entirely borne by the plant."

It may not be necessary to sell all the bonds. On motion of Mr. Lane the same was adopted.

A letter was read from H. L. LeGrand requesting permit to carry a revolver. Refused to police and sanitary committee. A letter was read from the supervisors in regard to the division of the city of Glendale into three voting precincts; the same was referred back as it is desirable to have four precincts. A letter was also read from the supervisors in regard to the same coming in from the recently annexed West Glendale district. This is the sum of $125,000, representing 60 per cent of the sum of $208,333, being the 60 per cent road tax rate on an assessed valuation of $480,000. The balance payable in May.

BUILDING OPERATION FIGURES FOR THE YEAR.

The total number of permits issued for December was 47, with a valuation of $72,349.

This makes the total number permits for the year 345; total valuation $441,899. These figures do not include the great building development of West Glendale for the year except for the months of November and December, as that territory did not come into the city until October 14th.

Mrs. Mary Howard Gridley of Brand boulevard attended the state board meeting of Federated Clubs held in the Friday Morning Club house on Tuesday. A very long and very interesting session was held, during which a discussion ensued regarding the next place in which the annual convention of Federated Women's Clubs would rather. ### IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION MEETING.

The meeting of the Improvement Association last Friday evening was well attended, and the unusually attractive program was thoroughly enjoyed.

There was a short business session, and one of the matters discussed was the holding of the bazaar announced some time ago. It was decided to have it come off the last week in the month, probably Thursday and Friday evenings.

HARTMAN AND JONES FEEL AGGRIEVED.

Referring to the lines of the proposed annexation district, M. V. Hartman, of the Western Empire Company, which is promoting the development of the Verdugo, Canyada and Monte Vista region, said:

"Of course, we have every reason to be very much dissatisfied with the boundaries of the district as laid out in the Verdugo Valley. Mr. Jones and I attended the meeting Tuesday night with the board of trustees and were wholly unprepared to meet the situation as it was presented. The board felt that they could not change the district lines without invalidating the whole petition and denied therefore our request for an extension of even one week so that the matter could be handled intelligently with the committee. We cheerfully assent to the absolute necessity of Glendale having protection against sewage in its water supply, and without conference or suggestion we provided a fund of $50,000 in our bond issue on the Mesneer lands to be ready to confer and act jointly with Glendale in solving the sewage question in the Verdugo valley."

We believe this question is the most important question any board of trustees will ever have to deal with, and it ought to be solved right. The present boundaries do not solve it and leave it so that it never can be solved in a satisfactory way to Glendale. At this particular moment we stood in a position to assist in completely perfecting the sewage plans. There were interests at the meeting intent upon driving the case through solely upon their own judgment. There has never been a time when the whole subject of sewage in that valley could have been settled so easily.

Vitality interested in the development of all of Glendale's back country and representing the incoming home-seekers, the whole problem could have been adjusted forever. As it is in the present line-up, the sewage problem is only half disposed of in a temporary way. The entire eastern slopes of the valley are not included, nor any arrangements about the north slopes of the valley. These districts will soon be densely populated. One week of active conference between the board and its engineers for this unquestionably is an engineering problem, and our organization could have completed the entire task for general to come. I am quite sure if we could have given the situation to a committee in the field that the advantages to Glendale would be perfectly apparent. We were in a position where we must discuss the most intimate details of our affairs in a large public meeting or take the program as it was laid out. We chose the latter as we are not the losers in this case, but the city of Glendale is the loser and by tremendous odds. The election of itself, without regard to its outcome may necessitate changes in our plans. The board practically wanted us to make plain why this was so, and no organization engaged in a large work of common welfare should be called upon to do so in public meeting. We cannot say at this time whether the result is of any interest to us or not. As it stands, it is a gross error on the part of Glendale, made through hasty judgment and without a definite engineering plan, which we defend our respective engineers to confer upon. Even if successful, it will not accomplish the ends sought and then cannot be properly corrected in many years. Having provided amply for conferences on this vital subject we are immeasurably disappointed that anything could take precedence over the proper adjustment of sewage from Verdugo Valley, to disbar us from the privilege thereof."

ENTERTAIN GLENDALE GUESTS.
Doubtless the largest and certainly one of the jolliest Christmas dinner parties held in Alhambra on Christmas day was that given at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Kelly, of 1814 Walnut street. Twenty-three were seated at a sumptuous feast in this home. Lavish preparations had been under way for several days, and among other unique and pretty features of the occasion was a miniature Christmas tree as the centerpiece and the place cards, which were rhymed verses describing the peculiarities and hobbies of the different guests. Miss Maud Kelly and Miss Pearl Reigel improvised these clever skits, which made a great hit with the guests. An informal program also enlivened the occasion. Miss Anna Addison, Miss Maud Kelly, Earl Starky and Ray Sherman composed a quartet, which rendered several numbers very acceptably. James Kelly and Miss Maud Kelly played several pieces with magnificent skill and the host, Mr. A. Kelly, was also persuaded to contribute a vocal solo. Charades and games provided further entertainment, as well as a handsome Christmas tree, which bore gifts for all. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Addison, Miss Anna Addison, Miss Marion Addison, Mrs. Sophia Goff, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ward, Miss Lillian Ward, Mrs. Edward Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Farrand, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Ward, Percy and Ray Sherman, all of Glendale, Miss Pearl Reigel of Alhambra, and the members of the Kelly family—Advocate.

WEST GLENDALE I. O. O. F. INSTALLATION.

ACCIDENT ON PACIFIC ELECTRIC

Number of Glendale People Injured

The first serious accident on the Glendale branch of the Pacific Electric occurred last Monday night, when the car leaving Los Angeles at 11:30 was run into by the Burbank car which left fifteen minutes later. Just after crossing the river between Ivanhoe and Tropic, the trolley pole broke, leaving the cars standing on the track in the darkness with some fifty or sixty passengers on board. The motorman was on top of the car, fixing the trolley, and the conductor appears to have been in the rear with a lantern, when the Burbank car came along at high speed and dashed into it. The impact was terrific, the moving car being the greatest sufferer. It seems almost miraculous that no one was killed, but at least a dozen passengers were quite seriously injured, those hurt worst being taken back to Los Angeles to have the care of the company doctors and hospital comforts. Mrs. Schremp, of West Fourth street, and two other ladies who were badly bruised, Miss Oliver, daughter of the Glendale harbor, is still in bed, suffering severely, her injuries not yet definitely located. Two or three of the injured on the Burbank car were seriously hurt.

One rear seat of the Glendale car was occupied by Mrs. and Miss Oliver, while Mr. Oliver stood beside it. Across the aisle were Mr. and Mrs. Gray, of the Hotel Glendale. Mr. Gray had left his seat, and just as the collision occurred was stepping down from the rear of the car. His car was badly cut by flying glass, and he was severely bruised by being tumbled down the bank. Miss Oliver was thrown down and badly bruised, but Mr. Oliver was not injured. Sitting in an outside seat in front was Mr. W. S. Middleworth, who says that the conductor of the Glendale car was about 150 feet in the rear, waving his lantern, when the crash came. He saw the lights of the Burbank car, and also saw the power reversed just as the car passed the conductor with the lantern. Mr. Middleworth was thrown forward and his knee joint was apparently dislocated, but came back into place, leaving him with an injury that it will take time to heal, although he is able to walk. Mr. and Mrs. Stockbridge, of the Burbank Theatre, living at Lomita Park, are among those receiving slight injuries. On the surface, the blame seems to rest upon the motorman of the Burbank car, but we have not heard his side of the story.

At the recent meeting of the school board, many interesting and important questions were brought up and discussed. Work of different kinds on the various schools and school grounds was ordered, and altogether a very interesting evening was spent. Mr. Anderson, the Supervising Principal, was present.

GLENDAL, CAL., JANUARY 5, 1912

The year is five days old; are your resolutions still unbroken?

Now Tropico, Casa Verdugo, Eagle Rock, Burbank or any other good-looking community, come right into Glendale, if you want to. The latch string is out. But remember, it is Leap Year and we are getting along fairly well as we are!

Dr. Orville W. Owen announces that he has unearthed evidence proving that Francis Bacon invented the airship. We can easily believe this; if Mr. Bacon wrote the plays attributed to Shakespeare, the invention of an airship would be mere pastime for his leisure hours.

Many of the cuts which appeared in our New Year's edition were kindly loaned to the NEWS by the Chamber of Commerce of Glendale, for which favor we return thanks. Our thanks are also extended to Mr. M. V. Hart-ruff of the Western Empire for cut of the map of country adjoining Los Angeles.

Mr. Herbert Crooks, who founded the San Fernando Press about seven years ago and ran that paper very successfully ever since until about a month ago, when he sold out, called at the NEWS office Friday last. Mr.
Crooks reports himself out of a job at present, and is touring the country in his red automobile. He is too good a newspaper man to rust out in idleness, and we expect to hear from him again in an editorial capacity.

If one-half of the telegraphic accounts of the orgies that took place in Chicago on New Year's eve and the few hours following midnight are true, that place well maintains its reputation as being the wickedest city in the world.

It is the great center where congregate the worst criminals in the country, and that city officials there should permit the saloons to run wide open, that fools might readily part with their wits and so easily fall a prey to the criminals who lay in wait for them, is a disgrace to civilization.

AS TO ARBITRATION.

As a promoter of the peace of the world, our ex-president is not a success. His objections to the ratification of the peace treaties that have been negotiated by the "Taft administration, are so evidently based upon personal prejudice and illogical reasoning as to be undeserving of regard.
Mr. Roosevelt is apparently of the opinion that no question about which the people of the United States have formed any opinion should be submitted to arbitration for fear that the decision might be against them. This kind of arbitration does not go far towards doing away with the scourge of war. The accusation against President Taft to the effect that he is inconsistent because he has given notice to Russia of intention to abrogate the treaty of 1832, has no basis in reason or fact. There is nothing about the abrogation of this treaty that promises to result in any serious trouble between the two countries. The treaty itself provides for its abrogation by either party under certain conditions.
Should the matter be left to congress to talk about all through the present session and be made the football of politics, it is quite conceivable that friction might be created which would give rise to a real need for arbitration, but now that the matter has been properly and diplomatically handled by the president, the affair will be disposed of without trouble unless the trouble makers in congress and elsewhere get busy. The people of the United States in the long run are usually right, but they are human and at frequent intervals temporarily go wrong. It is not quite an act of reason to conceive the idea that some time in the future they should go quite wrong in regard to some weighty matter of international interest and that a board of arbitrators might possibly have a better idea of the justice of the matter.

A POSSIBILITY OF PRACTICAL REFORM.

The statistics of the year just ended present a record of unprecedented growth and prosperity throughout the country. Wealth has increased but the problem of its more equitable distribution becomes no simpler than it has been from the beginning. "The poor ye have with you always," was not spoken of a particular period of the world, but has been applicable to all ages since the beginning of history and will no doubt apply until the end.
But no one who has a proper fellow feeling for the unfortunate of his kind, makes this an excuse for being satisfied with present conditions. The causes for the unequal distribution of the fruits of the earth among its people are many, and it is probable that over the most common of these causes, man has no control, but there are others which are certainly amenable to betterment by human action.
One of the most obvious causes is the overcrowding of the cities, for the suffering for lack of the necessities and common comforts of life, is almost entirely confined to the dwellers in the cities. Today there is work enough in the world for all, but in every large city there are large numbers of unemployed. And here at once the complications of the problem begin, assuming that they have not begun long ago, for many of the unemployed have no desire to obtain employment. It would seem to be a comparatively easy problem for statesmanship, the securing of work for willing workers.
It is principally a question of the bringing together of the laborer and the employer of labor, and in this day of rapid intercommunication between the various parts of our country this should be practicable. The government of the United States maintains a bureau of commerce and labor and this body could well be made the vehicle for securing information and distributing the laborers to the places where their labor is needed; it could, in other words, act the part of a vast employment agency, keeping in touch with every community in the country, and preventing either the congestion of labor or the unanswered appeal for it. Work of this kind is not the paternalism of socialism, it is the application on the part of the government of common sense business methods to a great problem. It is not the paternalism that would interfere with private enterprise, that would furnish labor for the unemployed by providing them spasmodically with work at the expense of the entire people. This plan would serve more than one good purpose, for in addition to furnishing work for the worthy worker, it would brand the willing loafer with the recognizable mark of his kind.

CORRESPONDENCE

Mr. Thom Replies to Sidney Dell

December 27, 1911.

Editor GLENDAL NEWS.

In your issue of December 27, 1911, you published a letter from Mr. Sidney Dell concerning the boundaries of the new annexation district. In so far as the boundaries affecting the interests of C. E. Thom and E. M. Ross are concerned, Mr. Dell has shown himself unfamiliar with the conditions or has purposely refrained from giving a full and impartial recital of the facts.

To charge that the annexation committee has made any attempt to "gold-brick" anyone whatever or that they acted in any but the best of faith is untrue, unjust and certainly uncalled for.

In the belief that Mr. Dell's letter might (because of his failure to state the whole case) lead into a wrong impression some of those unacquainted with the facts, I think it but fair to point out at this time, the nature of the committee which set the boundary as proposed, and their reasons for so doing.

Primarily, the committee on boundaries was not a self-constituted committee; but was appointed as a subcommittee with power to act, by a body of representative men (members of the Chamber of Commerce, etc.) who had met in the Glendale City Hall, for the purpose of discussing the annexation project, the proposed boundaries, time of election, etc.
There were present representatives both from the present city of Glendale and from the district which it was proposed to annex. That large body of representative men, all of them assembled there for the purpose of advancing the interests of Glendale, were the appointees of the committee acting upon the boundaries affecting the Thom and Ross interests.

Is it reasonable to presume that these men would attempt to "gold-brick" their community? I think not.

Mr. Thomas Watson, whom I have not seen since that meeting, was a duly appointed member of that subcommittee, and I will say that it is eminently unfair to him to state that he has ever at any time entered into any agreement whatever with the interests of Thom and Ross, other than that passed upon and endorsed by the entire committee. Mr. Watson is held in too high regard by the people of Glendale for them to give consideration to a statement that he would be a party to any scheme to "gold brick" them.

It is true that the boundary as set does not include a large additional area of the Thom and Ross ranches and it is equally true that a very large area of the lands of Thom and Ross is included in the present corporate limits, and that from the very nature of things as ranch property, the Thom and Ross lands cannot possibly derive the city treasury to afford that protection. Since that meeting the levees have been strengthened by Thom and Ross with many loads of material, and the city of Glendale has been put to no expense thereby. Let no one doubt that the agreement made by Thom and Ross is considered binding by them and will be carried out in all good faith.

It is the unanimous opinion of all with whom I have discussed the situation, that danger from floods arises almost entirely from the condition of the roadways and bridges crossing the stream, they being in such a condition that there is a tendency to impede the flow of water.

The Committee having met to dispose of serious problems and not visionary ideas, did not take up the matter of a street through the entire length of the Thom and Ross property; nor has Mr. Dell, who so strongly advocates such a street, entered into any explanation as to how it must be obtained and the cost to the taxpayers.

Should the owner of a five-acre ranch, after years of labor to bring his grove to a state of bearing, look with satisfaction on his property at night, and arise in the morning to find every tree laid low, he would consider himself a victim of grave injury, and yet the advocates of that cross street, "demand" in effect that Thom and Ross sacrifice just such a grove, there being about five acres in the strip "demanded" (bear in mind that the street would be 4500 feet long).
Because of the general north and south slope of the land, such a road would practically double the necessary number of fumes and the labor for irrigating. (It is obvious that the water could not be run across the roadway), why has not Mr. Dell explained that the cost of such a road would far outweigh its advantages, and explained also that the courts will add on to the purchase price of the land the amount of damage done the owners—such damage can be easily shown.

A little boy, (not wanting to deceive his mother) went of her and told her that he had broken a tile in the mantel piece. She chided him very gently because of his frankness. Finally she asked him how he broke the tile. He answered that he had pounded it with his papa's watch; which only illustrates that Mr. Dell has failed to frankly state the full details of the agreement, and has neglected to say that Thom and Ross agreed with the committee on boundaries, to dedicate free to the city of Glendale, a strip of land for road purposes, from the junction of Verdugo road and Glendale avenue, south to their line, which is where Glendale avenue now ends; that will give a thorough north and south street to the Verdugo road. There is now, and has been for years an east and west ranch roadway from Glendale avenue and Oak street, west to the extreme west line of C. E. Thom; that road lies just south of the wash is a direct way to the Verdugo road, and at no time has access been denied across the property. If at the extreme western end the road is closed for a short distance, it is through no fault of Thom and Ross, as they do not own the property.

I think the editor of the NEWS, as he was present at the meeting, while not a member of the committee, will bear me out in the accuracy of the statements I have made above, and that also many good and valid reasons were discussed as to the advisability of placing the boundaries as was done by that committee.

I do not doubt that with the facts before them the people of Glendale and of the proposed new territory to be an-nexed, will endorse the action taken by their committees, duly appointed, more especially when they know that such action was taken after painstaking investigation and with a view of the utmost good to all concerned, and I wish to state that the committees acted in the best of faith anyone to the contrary notwithstanding.

Very respectfully,
E. P. THOM.

THE SITUATION IN PERSIA

Interesting Contribution by Dr. Ward

Russia—the bully—has triumphed for the time being. W. Morgan Shuster leaves Russia and one chapter of the history of that interesting country is closed. This may seem like the close of American influence on that land and its history, but this is far from the fact. Shuster is a result of American influence rather than its author. For nearly a hundred years it has been accumulating and it is extremely doubtful if Russia will ever be able to destroy it.

For nearly a century, more exactly, since 1824, the quiet work of missionaries in the northeast corner of the empire has been giving its object lesson of honest and altruistic American manhood. Since '71 the same object lesson has been given to the capital—Tehran.

Especially the work of the American medical missionaries has appealed to the best ideals of the people. Such physicians and surgeons as Grant Holmes, Cochran and Wishard, have come about doing good like the Master and have left a powerful impress of ability and goodness. Some of the clerical missionaries, like Perkins and the elder Labaree, have been men of statesmanlike minds and have left a similar if not equal impress. Probably the schools of the American missions have left still deeper impress on the nation for the reason that they have dealt with the more impressionable age. The school for boys established in 1827 at the capital has had an opportunity, that it has met with idelity, of reaching the youth of the upper classes with the brightest American Christian ideals. It has reached representatives of the ruling classes by a high standard of education and a higher standard of morality.

It was at the motion of graduates from this school, members of the Persian parliament, that the U. S. government was asked to send them a treasurer general.

Some of the Americans in Persia felt that the appointment of an American to this position was a mistake.

Knowing the animus of Russia, they felt that her reply, when asked if she would not object to the appointment, was ambiguous at least. She said that she would not object to the appointment but she very soon found fault with the administration of Mr. Shuster.

The friends of missions were fearful of this result and feared that the effect might be to jeopardize the future of missionary work in Persia. The diploamte took the view that we were acting contrary to the spirit of the Monroe doctrine by entering into old world politics.

We may take any view we please as to the diplomatic question but there is no doubt that if Russia makes this incident an excuse for hampering the mission work of Americans in Persia she would have found some other excuse had not this one existed.

Whatever may be the outcome, it can scarce be possible that the vision of an honest administration, in contrast with all that Persia has known in the past of corruption by natives and foreigners, shall not be a good asset for the future.

As one who has spent many years in most intimate relations with the people of Persia and has had some experience with Russia and her methods, I wish to record my protest against the position taken by England at this incure. Like her action in permitting the Turkish massacres and her inaction in permitting Gordon to be sacrificed at Khartoum, this supineness to Russia will work to her injury and infamy.

I wish also to record my belief that the people of Persia are capable of working out their own political freedom and material prosperity if given a fighting chance. At the same time it is very certain that they are not ready for armed resistance and cannot be for many years, hence they have been obliged to submit to the bully and probably will be at the mercy of Russia indefinitely.

CHAPTER IX.

AS BETWEEN A MAN AND A WOMAN.

IT was Satan's inexhaustible energy and good spirits that most impressed them. His teeth seemed perpetually to ache with desire, and in lieu of black legs he basked the coconuts that fell from the trees in the compound, kept the enclosure clear of intruding hens, and made a hostile acquaintance with every boss boy who came to report.

Christian Young sailed away in the Minerva, carrying an invitation (that would be delivered nobody knew when) to Tommy Jones to drop in at Berande the next time he was passing.

"What are your plans when you get to Sydney?" Sheldon asked that night at dinner.

"First I've heard that I'm going to Sydney," Joan retorted. "I suppose you've received information, by bush telegraph, that that third assistant understrapper and ex-sailorman at Tulagi is going to deport me as an undesirable immigrant."

"Oh, no, nothing of the sort, I assure you," Sheldon began with awkward haste, fearful of having offended, though he knew not how. "I was just wondering, that was all. You see, with the loss of the schooner and—and all the rest—you understand—I was thinking that if—a-if—hang it all, until you could communicate with your friends, my agents at Sydney could advance you a loan, temporary you see, why I'd be only too glad and all the rest, you know. The proper—"

But his jaw dropped and he regarded her irritably and with apprehension. "What is the matter?" he demanded, with a show of heat. "What have I done now?"

"Certainly not the unexpected," she said quietly. "Merely ignored me in your ordinary, everyday, man god, superior fashion. Naturally it counted for nothing, my telling you that I had no idea of going to Sydney. Go to Sydney I must, because you, in your superior wisdom, have so decreed."

She passed and looked at him curiously, as though he were some strange breed of animal.

"Of course I am grateful for your offer of assistance; but even that is no salve to wounded pride. For that matter, it is no more than one white man should expect from another. Shipwrecked mariners are always helped along their way. Only this particular mariner doesn't need any help. Furthermore, this mariner is not going to Sydney, thank you."

"But what do you intend to do?"

"Find some spot where I shall escape the indignity of being patronized and bossed by the superior sex."

"Come now, that is putting it a bit too strongly," Sheldon laughed, but the strain in his voice destroyed the effect of spontaneity. "You know yourself how impossible the situation is."

"I know nothing of the sort, sir. And if it is impossible, well, haven't I achieved it?"

"But it cannot continue. Really?"

"Oh, yes, it can. Having achieved it, I can go on achieving it. I intend to remain in the Solomons, but not on Berande. Tomorrow I am going to take the whaleboat over to Paris-Sulay. I was talking with Captain Young about it. He says there are at least four hundred acres, and every foot of it good for planting. First, I'll buy the island; next, get forty or fifty recruits and start clearing and planting; and at the same time I'll run up a bungalow; and then you'll be relieved of my embarrassing presence—now don't say that it isn't."

"It is embarrassing," he said bluntly. "But you refuse to see my point of view, so there is no use in discussing it. Now please forget all about it and consider me at your service concerning this—this project of yours. Suppose the government sells you Paris-Sulay at a pound an acre, clearing will cost you at least $4 more—that is, $5 for 400 acres, or, say, $10,000. Have you that much?"

"No; I haven't quite $5,000."

"Then here's another way of looking at it: You'll need, as you said, at least fifty boys. Not counting premiums, their wages are $30 a year."

"I pay my Tahitians $15 a month," she interpolated.

"They won't do on straight plantation work. But to return. The wages of fifty boys each year will come to $300—that is, $1,500. Very well. It will be seven years before your trees begin to bear. Seven times $1,500 is $10,500—more than you possess, and all eaten up by the boys' wages, with nothing to pay for bungalow, building, tools, quintine, trips to Sydney and so forth."

Sheldon shook his head gravely. "You'll have to abandon the idea."

"But I won't go to Sydney," she cried. "I simply won't. I'll buy in to the extent of my money as a small partner in some other plantation. Let me buy it in Berande!"

"Heaven forbid!" he cried in such genuine dismay that she broke into hearty laughter.

"There, I won't tease you. Really, you know, I'm not accustomed to forcing my presence where it is not desired. Yet as you said yourself, it was impossible for me to go away, so I had to stay. You wouldn't let me go to Tulagi. You compelled me to force myself upon you. But I won't buy in as partner with any one. I'll buy Paris-Sulay, but I'll put only ten boys on it and clear slowly. Also, I'll invest in some old ketch and take out a trading license. For that matter, I'll go recruiting on Malaita."

She looked for protest and found it in Sheldon's clenched hand and in every line of his clean cut face.

"Go ahead and say it," she challenged. "Please don't mind me. I'm—I'm getting used to it, you know. Really I am."

"I wish I were a woman so as to tell you how preposterously insane and impossible it is," he blurted out.

"Better than that, you are a man. So there is nothing to prevent your telling me, for I demand to be considered as a man. I didn't come down here to trail my woman's skirts over the Solomons. Please forget that I am accidentally anything else than a man with a man's living to make."

"I have told you," he began stiffly, "that recruiting on Malaita is impossible for a woman and that is all I care to say—or dare."

"And I tell you, in turn, that it is nothing of the sort. I am a navigator, and that is more than your Solomons captains are. And I am a seaman—a better seaman than you, when it comes right down to it and you know it. I can shoot. I am not a fool. I can take care of myself."

Sheldon made a hopeless gesture. "That's right," she rattled on. "Wash your hands of me. But as you used to say, you've been accustomed to Jane Eyres all your life. That's why you don't understand me. Come on, Satan; let's leave him to his old music."

He watched her morosely and without intention of speaking, till he saw her take a rifle from the stand, examine the magazine and start for the door.

"Where are you going?" he asked peremptorily.

"As between man and woman," she answered, "it would be too terribly—indecent for you to tell me why I shouldn't go alligating. Good night. Sleep well."

He shut off the phonograph with a snap, started toward the door after her, then abruptly flung himself into a chair.

"You're hoping a gator catches me, aren't you?" she called from the veranda, and as she went down the steps her rippling laughter drifted tantalizingly back through the wide doorway.

The next day Sheldon was left all alone. Joan had gone exploring Paris-Sulay and was not to be expected back until the late afternoon. The loss of the Jessie had hit Berande severely. Not alone was his capital depleted by the amount of her value, but her earnings were no longer to be reckoned on, and it was her earnings that largely paid the running expenses of the plantation.

"Poor old Huggle," he muttered aloud once. "I'm glad you didn't live to see it, old man. What a cropper, what a cropper!"

Between squalls the Philiberty Gibbet ran into anchorage, and her skipper, Pete Oleson (brother to the Oleson of the Jessie), ancient, grizzled, wild-eyed, emaciated by fever, dragged his weary frame up the veranda steps and collapsed in a steamer chair. Whiskey and soda kept him going while he made report and turned in his accounts.

"You're rotten with fever," Sheldon said. "Why don't you run down to Sydney for a blow of decent climate?"

The old skipper shook his head. "I can't. I've been in the islands too long. I'd die. The fever comes out worse down there."

"Kill or cure," Sheldon counseled. "It's straight kill for me. I tried it three years ago. The cool weather put me on my back before I landed. They carried me ashore and into hospital. I was unconscious one stretch for two weeks. After that the doctors sent me back to the islands—said it was the only thing that would save me. Well, I'm still alive. But I'm too soaked with fever. A month in Australia would finish me."

He declined to sleep ashore, took his orders, and went back on board the cutter. A lurid sunset was blotted out by the heaviest squall of the day, and Sheldon watched the whaleboat arrive in the thick of it. As the spritsail was taken in and the boat headed on to the beach, he was aware of a distinct hurt at sight of Joan at the steering oar.

standing erect and swaying her strength to it as she resisted the pressures that tended to throw the craft broadside in the surf. Her Tahitians leaped out and rushed the boat high up the beach, and she led her bizarre following through the gate of the compound.

"Lovely, perfectly lovely—Paris-Sulay," she panted. "I shall buy it. I'll write to the commissioner tonight. And the site for the bungalow—I've selected it already—is wonderful. You must come over some day and advise me. You won't mind my staying here until I can get settled? Wasn't that squall beautiful? And I suppose I'm late for dinner. I'll run and get clean and be with you in a minute."

"Do you know, I'm never going to squabble with you again," he announced, when they were seated.

"Squabble!" was the retort. "It's such a sordid word. It sounds cheap and nasty. I think it's much nicer to quarrel."

"Call it what you please, but we won't do it any more, will we?" He cleared his throat nervously, for her eyes advertised the immediate beginning of hostilities. "I beg your pardon," he hurried on. "I should have spoken for myself. What I mean is that I refuse to quarrel. You have the most horrible way, without uttering a word, of making me play the fool. Why, I began with the kindest intentions, and here I am now—"

"Making nasty remarks," she completed for him.

"It's the way you have of catching me up," he complained.

"Why I never said a word. I was merely sitting here, being sweetly bungalow were up. I'd move tomorrow."

But her twitching lips belied her words, and the next moment the man was more uncomfortable than ever, being made so by her laughter.

"I was only teasing you. Honest Injun. And if you don't laugh I'll suspect you of being in a temper with me. That's right, laugh. But don't—"

she added in alarm, "don't, if it hurts you. You look as though you had a toothache. There, there; don't say it. You know you promised not to quarrel, while I have the privilege of going on being as hateful as I please. And to begin with, there's the Philiberty Gibbet. I didn't know she was so large a cutter. But she's in disgraceful condition."

"Her skipper's bad with fever," Sheldon explained. "And he had to drop his mate off to take hold of things at Ugi—that's where I lost Oscar, my trader. And you know what sort of sailors the niggers are."

She nodded her head judicially and he asked for a second helping of tinned beef, not because he was hungry, but because he wanted to watch her slim, firm fingers. They were brown with tan and looked exceedingly boyish. Then, and without effort, the concept came to him. Yes, that was it. He had stumbled upon the clew to her tantalizing personality. The fingers, sunburned and boyish, told the story. He had tried to treat with her as a woman when she was not a woman. She was a mere girl, and a boyish girl at that, with sunburned fingers that delighted in doing what boys' fingers did, with a body and muscles that liked swimming and violent endeavor of all sorts, with a mind that was daring but that dared so far from boys' adventures, and that delighted in riles and reverses, Stetson hats and a sexless camaraderie with men.

Somehow, as he pondered and watched her, it seemed as if he sat in church at home listening to the choir boys chanting. She reminded him of those boys, or their voices, rather. The same sexless quality was there. In the body of her she was a woman. In the mind of her she had not grown up. She had not been exposed to ripening influences of that sort. She had had no mother. Von, her father, native servant and rough island life had constituted her training. Horses and rifles had been her toys, camp and trail her nursery. From what she had told him her seminary days had been an exile, devoted to study and to ceaseless longing for the wild riding and swimming of Hawaii. A boy's training and a boy's point of view!

Well, there was only one thing for him to do. He must meet her on her own basis of boyhood and not make the mistake of treating her as a woman. He wondered if he could love the woman she would be when her nature awoke, and he wondered if he could love her just as she was and himself wake her up. After all, whatever it was, she had come to fill quite a large place in his life, as he had discovered that afternoon while scanning the sea between the squalls. Then he remembered the accounts of Berande and the cropper that was coming and scowled.

lured on by promises of peace on earth and all the rest of it, when suddenly you begin to call me names."
